

Invitation:

European Day of Jewish Culture
Sunday, September 1st, 2024, 10:30 a.m.
Location: Herrengrabenweg 50, Basel

For 25 years, municipal and Jewish facilities, institutions, and organizations in Switzerland and in over 35 European countries have dedicated September to the latest issues concerning the history, culture, religion and present of Europe's Jews.

Traces of Jewish families from Sulzburg (Germany)

Lecture by: Anna Längström

History lives from the people who write it. In this lecture, we will follow various biographies of Jewish families from the last few centuries, which will also take us to Alsace and Switzerland. We will learn about Jewish family life in different eras in this region and experience local history at first hand. Followed by an apéro and discussion. The lecture will be held in German.

Anna Längström was born in Basel in 1989 and grew up mainly in Germany. She now lives in the Basel region and works as a lawyer. She studied Jewish Studies and Philosophy at the University of Basel and recently obtained her BA. Her favorite research topics include Jewish history from the early modern period to the present day in Europe and especially in the Basel region, as well as the Yiddish language.
